A gospel parable — of forest creatures, a broken tree, and a selfless King.

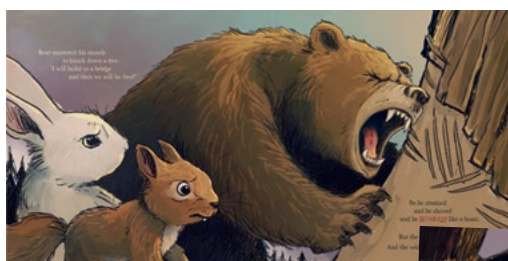

In the shadow of the Poisonwood Pines, a band of animals faces despair. Their land is dying. Their strength is gone. And across the great divide lies a place full of life — but no one can reach it. Despite their best efforts, the gap is too wide...until one silent King offers everything to make a way.

Before "Heroes of Time" dominated his mind, he worked extensively on creating an epic-fantasy novelization of a popular role-playing video game. Wayne wanted to be a published author for nearly 25 years before finally publishing Heroes of Time Legends: Murdoch's Choice. Life finally afforded enough flexibility that he is able to focus a lot more time developing the "Heroes of Time" series that he is very passionate about.

REVIEW

"Dee skillfully conveys basic tenets of quantum physics as she powers readers through the fast-paced story. The author also shows the simple power of kindness and what a difference it can make in a peer who is struggling. Myles proves this when he befriends Lucy, a girl from an often-moving military family. "We also have a responsibility to not spread misery," the protagonist opines, with wise words readers will learn from. "And you can't fake it, because energy is real. You are affecting people around you even when you don't know it. We need to learn to become aware of our own energy and to contain or control it." This is tangible advice to readers who may be unconvinced of their important places in the world. Dee deftly makes the unusual and offbeat believable, with characters who engender loyalty. Skillful plotting and lively prose power readers through the pages, eager to find out the next step in Myles' complicated destiny. Impatient readers won't be happy to find that this tale ends on a tantalizing cliffhanger, but they'll be eagerly awaiting the next installment."

At the center of our YA fantasy, A Tale of the Broken Heart, is a long-forgotten fairytale and the hidden truths that lie within it. Once upon a time a clockmaker was commanded to create a playmate and protector, an automaton like no other, for a lonely princess. Though the princess was counseled to always literally keep her playmate's heart, she could not guard the automaton against his own failings. Jealousy and fear became his undoing and the princess was forced to break his heart.

Caring

by Kobi Yamada

Illustrated by Elise Hurst

We all matter much more than we realize. This is the story about finding something you care about and doing a little bit of good each day. Written by New York Times bestselling author Kobi Yamada and illustrated by award-winning artist Elise Hurst, it's a tale about the power we each have to create change when we decide the difference we want to make.

This enchanting book follows the exploration of a young boy as he encounters a gardener and listens to her stories of transforming a desolate piece of land into a lush natural oasis. It's a reminder that the ability to help heal and hold the world is in every one of us—and of the joy in doing, giving, and connecting. Because when you care about something, you owe it to yourself to give it your best. After all, the value of a life is measured by the lives it touches.

About the Author: Kobi Yamada is the creator of many inspiring books, including New York Times bestselling What Do You Do With... series and Because I Had a Teacher. He is also the president of Compendium, a company of amazing people doing amazing things. Kobi feels grateful to share his life with his loving family in the Pacific Northwest where he can help good things grow.

About the Illustrator: Elise Hurst is an Australian fine artist, illustrator, and author, specializing in books for children. She recently illustrated Girl on Wire by Lucy Estela, which was short-listed for the Children's Book Council of Australia 2019 Awards. She lives in a house full of books and paintings. From her studio, where black pens and oil paints spill across the desk, magical worlds leap into being. Like something out of Beatrix Potter or Narnia, her friends are rabbits and bears, lions and tigers—and they all have a story to share.
